We would like to announce the following programs this coming summer in San Gemini, Italy.

Ceramics Restoration and Conservation Program:

May 23 - June 19, 2010

This four-week program's objective is to familiarize students with the materials of ceramics and the practices of restoration and conservation of archaeological ceramics. The program includes classroom study and fieldwork. Students will have the opportunity to work on archaeological artifacts from the excavation at the Roman Baths of Carsulae.

- Introduction to Conservation of Archaeological Ceramics
- Workshop on Ceramics and Ceramics Conservation

For more information visit our website:

http://www.sangeministudies.info/Program files/Program-frame.htm

Excavations of the Public Baths of Carsulae (2nd century BCE)

June 13- July 24, 2010

This is the fifth season of excavations at the Public Baths of the ancient city of Carsuale. The Umbrian city, founded along the via Flaminia in the late third century BCE, is located near the town of San Gemini. This area has been associated with healing waters since pre-Roman times. Work includes: field excavation, documentation of the site and of the archaeological artifacts collected. The excavation is a project of Valdosta State University with the collaboration of the San Gemini Preservation Studies, and is directed by Prof. Jane Whitehead. For more information visit this website:

http://www.valdosta.edu/~jwhitehe/Carsulaeweb/Carsulae home.htm

It is possible to attend both programs.